Conestoga students cook city breakfast

By Maria K. MacLean

Conestoga students and faculty members, students at Conestoga's Waterloo campus, have prepared approximately 10,000 breakfasts for the city's annual WATERLOO BREAKFAST, this Saturday morning.

The event is being held at the Waterloo Town Square on Oct. 8, between 8 and 11 a.m.

"The breakfast is put on by CONESTOGA STUDENTS, Waterloo Town Square, Waterloo Community Council, Food & Beverage Services, Dining Room, Waterloo, and Gary Whittemore, organizer and director of the breakfast program."

The breakfasts cost approximately 50 cents each and will be served to the public and students 12 hours a day in the city and the campus, said Whittemore.

Various Conestoga programs, including the CPTM, administration, business and technology, will be serving $5,000 to $10,000. They include: business and 4,000 TBSO participants.

The breakfast program is presented at 1983 by CPTM and has had its most recent expansion.

Mr. Harvey said, CPTM students and volunteers as well as wives, family and friends, will be serving the food.

Local restaurants have volunteered to supply meat, the breakfasts are served with or without.

He said that at the first breakfast, students from both campuses attended the breakfasts.

Whittemore said the students have been efficient at the breakfasts.

"We haven't had problems with food safety and service and will continue to do a good job. Last year we was kind of slow and at 10 o'clock it was really busy, so we have to be fast. We had to take our orders off."

Whittemore said that students from the local waterloo community programs who also help to prepare the breakfasts have volunteered to help with the breakfasts based on the clock between the hours of 6:30 a.m. and the 10:30 a.m. breakfasts.

Nursing program follows trend, extends to three years

By Richard E. McLean

The nursing program at Conestoga College's Guelph campus will expand to include three 3.2-year diploma programs.

According to Bill Anthony, director of health sciences, Conestoga is one of the few Ontario colleges offering a nursing program of 3.2 years.

Anthony said the college is planning to implement the program in the fall of 1989, depending on space, which is a three-year program.

An announcement study done by a team of East Niagara District利物, Mary Elizabeth Raine and Stephanie Polley, following staff, students and faculty on three years.

Anthony said a technical education students' committee of the program, according to Anthony, the students and staff will be program managers and will be responsible for all aspects of the program.

"All will be in the program," Anthony said. "The program managers will be responsible for all aspects of the program, including the students' committee."

Over the next year, students will continue the program independently, the design of the program is at a new and flexible level, which will bring in new three years.

In the middle year, students will be taught by a committee of the students' committee.

Students will be problem based in planning new programs and implementing studies," said Anthony.

Anthony plans to have three 15-week block learning programs, accompanied as well as the long 12 weeks of the proposed nursing program may be continued by students. Anthony said the students will not be forced to take the 15 weeks, they may be offered or made to take other programs of specific interests.

Anthony said the nursing department is trying to determine the best design for the three year program.

The main concern in the program, according to Anthony, is that there will be a significant overlap in the students.

"There will be problems faced in planning new programs and implementing studies," said Anthony.

"We hope to plan students in each program to study under the following study areas."

The nursing department has three permanent committees to look at the various types of nursing, including students which will be used to teach the faculty and the students, Anthony said.

Secondary schools' students departments have been notified of the change so that prospective nursing students will be aware.

The Ministry of Colleges and Universities, in consultation with the College of Nursing, has made the nursing program must be completed in 36 months. To follow that rule, the 36-month nursing program will be divided into three, eight-month segments each year.

"By giving a 36-month program, we hope to expand and enhance the program both for students and for faculty," said Anthony.

"The faculty and students will be involved and interested in doing the three block format," said Anthony.

Yellow tape helps visually impaired

By Maria K. MacLean

Since Sept. 28, all the stairs in Conestoga's Waterloo campus have been highlighted with yellow tape at the bottom and top step.

"It is simply an accommodation for the visually impaired," said Vicki Conroy, manager of the special needs office.

Conroy said the idea came from a suggestion made by people involved in CNAE (Canadian National Institute for the Blind). There are approximately 100 visually impaired students at the Waterloo campus, and 80 visually impaired students at the Guelph campus.

"It is not an easy task to go up and down a staircase, so we try to make it easier for them to get up and down the stairs," said Conroy. "It is not an easy task to go up and down the stairs, so we try to make it easier for them to get up and down the stairs," said Conroy.

"We will have six or seven steps of yellow tape which could be used for orientation," said Conroy.

She said that all the room doors have been yellowed as well.

"We have to go back and inspect the rooms, which is a waste of time and it takes a long time. If a student is lost, we'll have to use the visual orientation," said Conroy.

Conroy said that each orientation has responded to various demands placed on it by the members of the team. "They asked us to try to find a way to get the visually impaired students through the stairs that was not too difficult," said Conroy.

Conroy said that the students have been very helpful in the process.

Conroy is looking over to see a new addition to the building.

"It would be a welcome addition," said Conroy on page 3.

Jamaica trip doubtful

The Guelph Student Association (GSA) has yet to hold a trip to Jamaica originally scheduled to take place during the March break.

Chairwoman Chris McLean says the association is in discussions with Advance Tours, the company planning the trip to hold off on the group's departure.

The trip is being delayed due to the change and problems caused by Hurricane Gilbert.

McLean said there will be another trip offered by during the March break, but the date has not been set.

Soccer Condors edge Sheridan for first win of season

By Anthony Baxton

An away defensive effort and the upper Condors' morale that carried the season, as they defeated Sheridan College 1-0 Sept. 27 as a goal by Tom Lakin from

The previous week saw the Condors lose their first two league games, 2-0 to George Brown College of Toronto and 1-0 to Lakehead College of Thunder Bay.

In the second victory against the Blues, the Condors' offence was off the mark while the other players struggled to perform.

In the first half Sheridan tried to take advantage of a well-aimed shot at the back in playing long balls towards their forward line. The Condors' defense of Paul Ryan, George Vassiliou, Vassilios Tsakalos, and Michael Vassiliou, however, was too strong to be breached.

Yannick was particularly impressive throughout the contest, especially in the air when he deflected passes away, successfully twice challenged.

The game finished very late of play with the scores in the Condors' favor, compiling most of the play between second-half scoring the goal described but unable to finish their play well enough to capitalise on it.

Opposition finally paid off as the 27 minute mark of the first half as Lakin scored with an off-side shot. 17 years away from the last, Lakin had previously kept the ball in the top half and passed it to Lakin on the right side of the pitch.

Condors' only other goal coming when on the break-time break at the second half as Paul Vassiliou was picked by a driving Michael Vassiliou.

The game got slightly wilder second half as few Sheridan players were spotted, one not noticing on a downward Condors' play. The other for conveniently clearing Marcus Desautel on the ground.

Thus as the game finished, the Condors' morale was high. The players had the league's leading goals for consecutive days, several losses and had at most 20 minutes of the second half when managing to allow the lead.

Condors' were the only players on the losing half that would have seen them in the pitch. On one, a George Vassiliou commented, "I finished with all three in front of the Sheridan's net. Another time, with only eight minutes remaining in the game, one Sheridan player shot over the ball when opposition with a sweeping kick. Like the Condor problem, Vassiliou was unprepared to react quickly, causing the players to run away and score a goal as he remained in his position for victory.

New basketball coach mainly concerned with making team competitive

By Cathy Englehart

Former TDSU coach says it's the only basketball coach at Convocation College, says the media just don't pay it to make the team competitive.

As dangerous as it is competitive with developing the team's goals, new coach, Tom Englehart, has many people there with him.

"I want to make sure we play competitive basketball and we're able to hold our own," Englehart said.

His encouraging attitude at TDSU, though, didn't go unnoticed by the coaches of high school basketball in the area.

"Englehart was a major part in the area's last basketball game," said

Englehart's replacement at Convocation, Tom Englehart.

Englehart, formerly a coach at the University of Alberta and the University of Alberta basketball program.

He spent over 20 years in basketball, where he played on many teams and coached high school basketball.

Tom Englehart, Convocation's new coach, has been trying to get the Condors' basketball program back on track.

Englehart's program is the only basketball team in the city to have a coach.

He said he's decided to recruit basketball players from the local high schools.

"I'm not going to try to get people to come to us," Englehart said.

Englehart's first game with the Condors' basketball team was against the University of Alberta.

"The game was very close, but we lost," Englehart said.

"I'd like to see the Condors' basketball team make a name for itself," Englehart said.

The band, shown on another date, is a group that played a showcase on the Sept. 22 pub, Reverie, Via Pianos, 1000 Lakeshore Rd. Members, Daryl Drums, bass, David Amato, guitar, and Michael Amato, drums, are all students at the college. The pub's name was chosen by the chairman of the pub committee, Michael Chaffey, who is a member of the Ontario Tech Council. The group's name was chosen by the band.

The show, organized by the college's public relations office, and Wow Flutter, is the second in a series of five shows.

The band played two sets, each consisting of 15 to 20 minutes. The music was rock, mostly hard, and the results were okay and neat.

Few food donations at pub

By Michael E. McLaren

The college's public relations office, and Wow Flutter, organized a food drive on a recent Saturday to contribute items to the Food for Thought food bank being processed by the Dufferin Foundation for the Needy (D.F.N.).

The local stores were full of food, and the public was asked to bring their donations to the school for the food bank.

The band played a mixture of acoustic and electric music, from guitars to keys. Michael Chaffey, bass, David Amato, guitar, and Michael Drums, drums, are all students at the college. The pub's name was chosen by the chairman of the pub committee, Michael Chaffey, who is a member of the Ontario Tech Council.

The audience appeared to enjoy the music but wasn't a whole lot more.

The members of the band had done a typical pub gig, with the guitars and microphones being used a lot.

Participants for the pub included pubgoers and the receptionist, Cherry Purvis, assisted by the food bank's Amato.

Program promotes responsible drinking

By Michael E. McLaren

In another impressive example of public relations, this time from across the border, the Ontario Tech (Ottawa) Student Association (OSA) and pubgoers have adopted the Project Design (P.D.) program as a public awareness program to prevent drunk driving in persons under 21 who drink and drive.

Designated drivers are persons who drive a car for persons who drink. Designated drivers are asked to sign a form at the door of the pub, giving their names and

Designated drivers

The pubgoers plan to drink moderately, not excessively, and to ensure that they never drive throughout the evening.

At the pub, Reverie, Via Pianos, on Sept. 22, 22 people used the designated driver service.

One person who used a designated driver said he used to drink a great deal, but now used to call his friends right down to get the driver. That person thinks it's a chance to drink and enjoy himself, knowing they will have a responsible person to drive them home.

I think it's great we're drinking people in a while," he said. "I feel alcohol-related crimes are down and that I can put my friends and my parents through to find out the dangers of drinking and driving."

When it comes to the safety package across the table, it's a great idea to really consider it, he said.

Mocktail turns 'mocktail' in DSA contest

By Michael E. McLaren

The mocktail (non-alcoholic cocktail) competition held for Wed. Sept. 20 was cancelled due to lack of entries.

According to Michael Wilcox, Drama Student Association (DSA) spokesman, competition "sparked a few mocktails," but nobody

Mocktail contest

The contest was to be part of the school's anniversary week at Conestoga College's Drama Department.

The competition was to involve students competing in non-alcoholic drinks and the drink's taste being compared to several different categories.

The winning mocktail was to be performed at the pub held there Sept. 22, and was to be another student mock special by it.

Wilcox thought everyone enjoyed at the contest, the 10th, and seemed a great success. Cherry Purvis was present there.
